The Master Study Programme in Chinese-European Economics and Business Studies provides you with many opportunities. Future career possibilities include a specialist or executive in a Chinese-European corporation, either in commerce or in politics. This is an intercultural study course that provides you with fundamental insights into the economic development and economy of China and Europe. You will tackle core topics relating to businesses and institutions that work in a Sino-European setting. The master programme provides you with:

- Sound specialist knowledge in the field of International Business and Economics
- An enhanced understanding of Sino-European business studies
- Cultural and political background knowledge, as well as compact language courses
- A dedicated Career Service and a resolute network.

Programme Structure

The Master in Chinese-European Economics and Business Studies starts in September each year and runs full-time over 2 years. It is divided into three sections:

- Learn the basics at BPS – in addition to aspects of international business and economics, leadership skills are also taught (e.g., intercultural training) as well as the language
- Semester abroad in China – you spend the third semester studying at the Southwestern University of Finance and Economics (SWUFE) in Chengdu, deepening and broadening your knowledge
- Master's thesis – during the fourth and final semester, you focus on your master's thesis. It's up to you to decide whether you write your thesis at BPS or SWUFE
- In certain circumstances, it is possible to gain a Dual Degree from SWUFE and HWR Berlin. Specific terms for this can be found here.

Programme Content

The Master in Chinese-European Economics and Business Studies focusses on matters of international finance and commerce. The first two semesters concentrate intensively on all aspects of Chinese-European business, from finance to marketing to HR. You gain the entrepreneurial knowledge required to negotiate both markets, analyse relevant interfaces and contrasts and build upon your leadership skills.

Elective modules also provide you with the opportunity to pursue individual career goals. For example, to specialise in areas such as corporate finance, entrepreneurship, media marketing, project management or business strategy and CSR.

However, the master's programme provides much more than just selected snippets of wisdom. It offers you the certainty of having connected, profound understanding. In addition to management skills, you will also gain an insight into the economies and financial markets of China and Europe alike, as well as the cultural and political history. Thorough language training will perfectly round off your competences.

After completing the semester abroad in China, thinking globally and life in both worlds will be second nature.

Admission Requirements

- Completed university degree
- At least one years' professional experience following the primary university degree
- very good knowledge of English (minimum scores - TOEFL: cbt 213 points or ibt 79 points; IELTS: 6.5 points)
